De' Longhi Group renews its commitment to supporting the scientific research of Fondazione Veronesi

Treviso, July 11th 2025 – The De' Longhi Group strengthens its long-standing collaboration with the Umberto Veronesi Foundation, an international point of reference for supporting scientific research in the fields of oncology, cardiology, and neuroscience. The initiative aims to actively support the funding of excellent research and promote a culture of science, thereby contributing to building a healthier and more informed future.

With the aim of concretely supporting cutting-edge research projects, the De' Longhi Group has contributed to the backing of the activities of the international LOGGIC-CORE protocol for the diagnosis and treatment of paediatric gliomas. Furthermore, through the Nutribullet® brand, it has also guaranteed the funding of a scholarship for a young female researcher this year.

The recent ceremony dedicated to the Foundation's scientific research funding represented an important occasion to celebrate and acknowledge the continuity of results stemming from a lasting partnership, founded on common values and tangible progress. Contributing to this long research journey is a source of pride and great responsibility for the Group.

Over the years, the De' Longhi Group has progressively strengthened its social commitment, holistically integrating sustainability themes into its corporate strategy. The goal is to generate a positive and lasting impact for the company and its stakeholders, pursuing manufacturing excellence and offering consumers products that enable sustainable consumption. Brands like Nutribullet embody this commitment, daily encouraging conscious behaviour and a healthy lifestyle, demonstrating the Group's commitment and responsibility towards individual and collective well-being.
